Dear Friends,

Response to Muscogiana has been outstanding. We are contemplating reprinting a small number of the first issue so that all of our members will have a copy. As it is now, many new members do not have a copy because of the demand far exceeding the number that was printed.

Research has indicated that some transcriptions of the tombstones in Linwood Cemetery may be incorrect, particularly those of Confederate soldiers. Readers are encouraged to notify the Senior Editor of any mistakes found concerning the inscriptions. All corrections are being noted with the hopes that the Society will soon be able to publish a cemetery book for Muscogee County containing a current record of Linwood as well as many of the smaller cemeteries in the county.

Again, my sincere appreciation to Linda Kennedy and Callie McGinnis. Without them, this publication would not be possible. I would like also to thank Dr. John Lupold of Columbus College for his continued efforts towards the success of this publication.

Sincerely,

JOHN LASSITER

COLUMBUS, GEORGIA'S ORIGINAL COMMISSIONERS: Part Two -

PHILLIP HENRY ALSTON

By

Kenneth H. Thomas, Jr.

Decatur, Georgia 30030

This article is a continuation of the series begun in the first issue of Muscogiana about the five commissioners appointed by the governor of Georgia to lay out the city of Columbus and oversee the sale of lots. For background about the appointments, etc., see that article.

Philip Henry Alston¹ was a resident of Elbert County, Georgia in December 1827 when he was chosen by Governor John Forsyth² to be a commissioner. How he came to the attention of the governor is not known. Alston was born c. 1794-1800, probably 1796-1797, in Elbert County³; the youngest son, perhaps the youngest child, of William Alston (1750s-1810) and Charity (Alston) Alston (1750s-1823)⁴. They were married in 1774 in North Carolina⁵. Phillip Henry Alston was an orphan at his father's death and probably did not reach his majority (21) until about 1817⁶.

He first appears individually in a public record as a winner from Elbert County in the 1820 Land Lottery, held to distribute land in both northeast and south Georgia. Alston won a 490 acre lot in Habersham County and moved there in 1821, where he was an attorney in Clarkesville⁷. Shortly thereafter he was appointed a militia colonel and moved to Gwinnett County on Georgia's then-western frontier; a county also formed in 1818 and whose lands were distributed in the 1820 Land Lottery.

Alston's record in Gwinnett County, where he apparently lived for five years or less, is scant due to a loss of many early courthouse records. He was appointed Colonel of the 45th Regiment of Georgia Militia on May 9, 1821 by the governor and served in that capacity until being replaced in 1826⁸. He also appears to have been a lawyer in Lawrenceville in the early 1820s⁹. Apparently, he left Habersham County for a five year stint in Gwinnett due to his militia commission, or he may have followed one of his sisters and her husband¹⁰.

Col. Alston's career in Gwinnett and the militia was hindered by his poor health. In August 1825 he wrote Governor George M. Troup from Warrenton, North Carolina, where he had already spent four months due to "ill health." Having noted the growing crisis between Troup and the U. S. Government over the recent Treaty of Indian Springs and the need to protect the surveyors who were surveying the Indian lands ceded by this treaty, Alston offered to return to Georgia if the governor required his services. He wrote Troup, "I am one of the oldest officers of my grade....", even though he was only 28. There is no evidence as to Troup's reply, but the lands being surveyed included the future Muscogee County¹¹.

It was probably due to poor health and a need to fully recover from his illness that when he returned to Georgia he settled in Elbert County. During 1826-1827 we see his political interests in several issues there that grew hot enough for citizens to gather and protest publicly. Alston signed at least two local petitions of grievances which appeared statewide in a number of newspapers in 1826 and 1827. One of these was to protest the Treaty of Indian Springs of 1825 and the other the Tariff of 1827¹². It seems likely that this is only the tip of the iceberg of his political profile. It could be that due to his outspokenness on a number of issues he came to the attention of Governor Forsyth when he took office in November 1827.

Alston's appointment took place in December 1827 and his bond was dated January 9, 1828¹³. The first meeting of the commissioners for the city of Columbus took place in Milledgeville, the state capital, on January 25th¹⁴. Alston was present at that meeting and most others until the commissioners' services were terminated in the spring of 1829¹⁵.

While it was not necessary that the commissioners move permanently to Columbus, Alston apparently did, or did so briefly. As was pointed out in the previous article, two of the commissioners, DeGraffenreid and Beall, left descendants in Columbus. Alston may have intended to be the third. Other Elbert Countians, no doubt friends and relatives of Alston, came to Columbus and Muscogee County in the early years, most prominent among these would be Alston's cousin, John Banks, who built the Cedars, in Wynnton¹⁶.

Alston was apparently unmarried when selected to be a commissioner. The secretary to the Board of Commissioners was Sowell Woolfolk (1790s-1832), also appointed by the governor, and as an early resident of Muscogee County was its first state representative in 1827, before Columbus was established¹⁷. Although he moved to Columbus, it was in Milledgeville where Woolfolk married Sophia W. Thomas on December 20, 1829¹⁸.

Shortly after the commissioners gathered in Columbus in July 1828 for the actual sale of the city lots, it was announced in several Georgia newspapers that on "Sunday last" (July 27, 1828) Colonel Philip H. Alston and Mrs. Sarah D. Parks, a widow, both "of Columbus" had married¹⁹. No doubt this was also announced in the fledgling Columbus Enquirer, but the issues are now missing, as are the county marriage records for the early years. We must rely on other Georgia newspapers which reprinted the news²⁰. The couple was married by Edwin E. Bissell (1793-1838), who does not appear to have been a minister, but was shortly thereafter appointed Justice of the Inferior Court for Muscogee County²¹.

The "widow Parks" turns out to be a sister of Sowell Woolfolk, so the commission was a match-making ground!²² Born Sarah Dalton Woolfolk, she lived most of her early years in Stokes County, North Carolina. Her first marriage, in 1822, was to John P. Parks and presumably took place in North Carolina. Parks died "March 10, 1827" either in North Carolina or Georgia²³. One of her two sisters, Elizabeth Biggers Woolfolk, had married in 1821 in Stokes County, James G. Parks, most likely a brother of Sarah's husband²⁴. Sarah may have come to Georgia with her sister and the latter's husband, either before or after she was widowed herself. Her sister's husband died in 1830 and Elizabeth by 1836²⁵.

PHILIP HENRY ALSTON

It does not appear that Philip and Sarah had any surviving children of their own. Of the two children which Sarah is known to have raised, one Richard M. Parks was hers by her first marriage, and the other was her sister's. The Alstons appear in the 1830 Census of Muscogee County with one male child under five, presumably hers, who will be discussed later²⁶. Her recently-widowed sister, Elizabeth, was living in Houston County with three children²⁷.

The Alstons' stay in Columbus was brief. The reason for their departure in 1831 is unknown, but could have resulted from a number of reasons: Colonel Alston's health (he died only a few months after they left and had been quite ill earlier), financial reasons, to join other family members (once they left, she remained in the new region for the rest of her life), or just to go to yet another frontier or developing area. It should be noted that at the time they left Columbus, they each had a brother living there. It seems his health is the most likely reason for their leaving.

Shortly after they left Columbus her brother, Sowell, was killed in January 1832 in a duel. Sowell had been a legislator and a very influential man in the growing city of Columbus. Whatever sphere of influence he had, the Alstons no doubt basked in it, as well as from being one of the founding fathers and a commissioner²⁸.

When they left Columbus they moved to Clarkesville, in northeast Georgia's Habersham County, where Alston had won land ten years earlier and lived briefly. Alston apparently resumed his role as an attorney in the county, as his name appears on some court records. He sold the 490 acre tract he had won to his older brother, James, of Abbeville District, South Carolina, on December 28, 1831, giving his own residence as Habersham County²⁹. Sometime before June 20, 1832 Alston died. It was in July 1832 that "Sarah D. Alston, widow of Philip H. Alston" appeared before the justices of the Inferior Court of Habersham County, Georgia to challenge the "Estate of Philip H. Alston, deceased."³⁰

Ironically, while Sarah was essentially challenging his will, none was ever recorded and no other records of his estate can be located in Habersham County, or in Elbert County for that matter³¹. This would indicate that his estate was neither substantial nor solvent, for if it were, it would have to have been probated. The lack of an exact date of death, as well as definite certainty as to where he was living when he died, adds some mystery to his departure from Columbus and subsequently quick demise. It is also unusual that during the 1832 Land and Gold Lottery registrations, which were going on during the first half of 1832 (approximately February 20-June 20), by some quirk of fate Col. Alston registered for the 1832 Land Lottery from Elbert County, and later won posthumously, and Sarah D. Alston registered for the Gold Lottery as a widow from Habersham County, and also won. This would indicate that their residency was not certain and that Alston died during the registration period³².

Whether or not she was in dire financial straits due to being widowed with two small children to support, or due to a lack of any immediate kinsmen since her influential brother, her sister, and her husband were all dead, Sarah was married a third time on December 25, 1832 in Habersham County to Hezekiah Dyer (1799-after 1860)³³. Her third marriage was perhaps her luckiest, for it lasted over 25 years until her death on February 2, 1860, presumably in Clarkesville, Habersham County³⁴. Her obituary appeared in the Southern Christian Advocate, the official Methodist publication, indicating that she had joined the Methodist church at the time of or before her first marriage in 1822 and had remained a member until her death³⁵. It is not known where she was buried, or for that matter where Colonel Alston was buried³⁶.

Dyer was named guardian for Mary Henrietta Parks, orphan of James G. Parks, on November 7, 1836. This would indicate that the child was Sarah's sister's child, not hers³⁷. Mary Henrietta Parks, born in 1822 in North Carolina, married in 1841 John Harris Wyly (1812-1886), son of Sarah Clark, a granddaughter of Gov. John Sevier of Tennessee and a member of the prominent Cleveland family³⁸. His father, James R. Wyly, had briefly been one of the owners/builders of Traveler's Rest, now a state-owned historic site³⁹. The Wyllys and their growing family eventually moved to Atlanta after 1860, and are buried there in Oakland Cemetery. Mary Henrietta, who died November 23, 1894, left many descendants⁴⁰. Her siblings were Camilla C. and James S. Parks who both lived in Muscogee County or Marion County in 1839. They have not been traced⁴¹.

The other child in the Alston and Dyer household, Sarah's only child, was Richard M. Parks, who was born in North Carolina in 1825. He was married first in Habersham County on September 9, 1845 to Sarah Allen. They later moved to Gwinnett County, where she died in 1861, also a Methodist. A doctor and a farmer, he later remarried and was living in Gwinnett County in 1870. He had at least two children, John Richard Parks (born c. 1847), who served in the Civil War and Sarah, (born c. 1853), unmarried in 1870⁴². The descendants have not been traced any further.

While Philip Henry and Sarah Woolfolk Alston married and lived in Columbus only briefly, their kinsmen left a longer legacy there. Today, there are many collateral relatives of the Woolfolk family in Columbus. They are descendants of Sowell and Sarah's uncle, John Woolfolk (1781-1861), whose plantation south of the city was a large part of what became Fort Benning⁴³. Col. Alston's brother, William Hinton Alston, and his wife Elizabeth Rucker, moved to Columbus by 1830 and were there in 1860 and presumably later. They left numerous descendants, including a son Philip Henry (1830-1882) named for his uncle, but who has no descendants. Another descendant of William H. and Elizabeth who bore the same name was Philip Henry Alston, Jr. (1911-1988), a prominent Atlanta attorney and President Jimmy Carter's Ambassador to Australia⁴⁴.

Col. Alston's brief stint as a commissioner for Columbus and his earlier political activity foreshadowed an active future. His removal to Habersham County and his sudden demise ended that career. More might be learned about him if any letters he wrote could be found in manuscript collections, if an obituary is ever discovered, through family material, or if a complete search of all pertinent governmental records is made⁴⁵.

NOTES

1. Savannah Georgian, May 3, 1828, p. 2, col. 6. This was the advertisement by the commissioners for the sale of lots for July 1828. Alston's full name appeared in all of them. His nephew and other namesakes also had this same name.
2. Executive Minutes, December 26, 1827, as quoted in Telfair, page 35.
3. His approximate date of birth, is more likely 1796, because he must have been in his late 20's to be named a militia colonel in 1821. In the 1820 Census of Elbert County it appears that he was living in the household of his brother, William H. Alston, both of them being born 1794-1804. In the 1830 Census of Muscogee County his years of birth are between 1790-1800, thus interpolating between these would put his birth between 1794-1800. In the 1814 Tax Digest of Elbert County, only William H. Alston paid taxes, which normally indicates that one is over 21, but he must have been paying them for his mother, since he was not yet 21. Thus Philip was younger. William H., according to the 1850 Census, was born around 1795-1796 in Georgia. The Alston family history gives no birthdates for any members of this family.

Philip H. Alston was named last in both lists of sons.

7. Alston, hereinafter referred to as PHA, appears in some lawsuits in Elbert County in 1818, about the time the registration was made for the land lottery held in 1820. The original lists of the 1820 Land Lottery winners are in the Surveyor General Office of the Georgia Department of Archives and History (GDAH). PHA of Rucker's District, Elbert County, won Lot 25, 5th District, Habersham County. His widowed mother, Charity, and brother, William H., all of Rucker's District, also won land in that lottery, in other counties. Also, Habersham County, Georgia. Minutes of the Superior Court A (1818-1822), p. 21 (as published and indexed in 1972 by Herbert B. Kimzey).
8. Georgia Militia Commissions (1820-1822) (on MF at GDAH), p. 492. Governor John Clark appointed Philip H. Alston, Esq., as Colonel of the 45th Regiment of Militia, "usual residence is within the regiment", dated May 9, 1821; and Georgia Military Records, 1808-1829 (MF 40-16 at GDAH), p. 69-B, gives the date of his commission as May 9, 1821, and his replacement being named Sept. 15, 1826. He had returned to Elbert County by June 1826.

MUSCOGIANA, VOL. 1, NO. 2

9. His residency and occupation in Gwinnett County are confirmed by Flanigan, History of Gwinnett County, Georgia (1959, reprint 1975), II, 152 in a list of lawyers living in Lawrenceville in 1821; a list of Tax Defaulters for 1824 found in File II, GDAH; and in the Gwinnett County, Georgia, Minutes of the Inferior Court for Ordinary Purposes (1819-1861, (on MF at GDAH, but also published by the Gwinnett Historical Society in 1987), p. 5 (13), PHA was security for someone in May 1822.
10. The wills of his parents, cited above, give his married sisters as: Sarah, wife of Thomas Chambers; Ann or Nancy, wife of William H. Tait (Tate); Elizabeth Thompson (who may have died by 1823 since she is not mentioned in her mother's will; and the youngest, Mary, wife of James O. Clarke. There is a Sarah Chambers in Gwinnett County in the 1840 Census, several references to a Thomas Chambers in Parr's Gwinnett County Legal Notices in Athens, Georgia Newspapers (1827-....) as well as to a William H. Tait in 1827 (p. 4) and 1829 (p. 11). Alston was in Gwinnett before the records in Parr's book begin. A record in the Card Catalog/Personal Name File at GDAH indicates that William Hudson Tait moved to DeKalb County and later to Texas in 1835.
11. PHA to Gov. Troup, August 18, 1825, File II, Names, GDAH.
12. These two petitions were discovered only through the detailed index to Savannah newspapers prepared during the 1930s by the WPA. Savannah Georgian, June 5, 1826, p. 2, col. 3, "The Treaty"; and Ibid., Sept. 27, 1827, p. 2 col. 3.
13. See Hallam article, footnote 6.
14. See Hallam article, footnotes 9, 22, 23, and 24.
15. Ibid.
16. John Banks and PHA sold land between each other in Elbert County before moving to Muscogee. Banks' mother, Rachel Jones, was the daughter of Charity Alton, see Alston History, p. 176.
17. Sowell Woolfolk is discussed in the early histories of Columbus by Martin, Telfair, and Worsley. His first Georgia residence was Augusta (1826) and he moved to Muscogee County when it opened and was chosen by the governor because he was already a landowner.
18. Georgia Journal, December 26, 1829.
19. Georgia Messenger (Macon, GA), Aug. 9, 1828. Since the newspaper does not cite a specific date for the wedding, it probably was reprinted from the Columbus Enquirer. It appears that John H. Martin had a copy of the original issue of the Columbus Enquirer on hand when he wrote his work in the 1870s, since he gives their wedding date as July 28th. Actually, July 27th was a Sunday.

PHILIP HENRY ALSTON

20. The wedding was cited in newspapers in Savannah and Augusta, and probably others.
21. GDAH, Card Catalog/Personal Name Index states that Bissell was named Justice of the Inferior Court August 19, 1828. He was later a member of Trinity Episcopal Church at the time of his death. He had performed many other weddings, both before and after the Alston one, note those on March 10, March 19, and April 1, 1828 according to Warren's Marriages and Deaths ... to 1830, as indexed. He is never listed as a minister.
22. Her obituary appeared in the Southern Christian Advocate, March 22, 1860. An abstract of it is published in Brent H. Holcomb, Marriage and Death Notices from the Southern Christian Advocate, 1837-1860 (Easley, S. C.: SHP, 1979, p. 587. Her father's will appears in Absher and Hayes, comp., Stokes County, North Carolina Will Abstracts, Volumes I & II (1790-1816), p. 47?.
23. Her obituary, as cited. Some of the dates appear to be incorrect, such as the year of her marriage to Alston. Therefore it is possible that the marriage and death dates for Mr. Parks could also be in error.
24. Stokes County, North Carolina, Marriage Bonds. Marriage Bond of James G. Parks and Elizabeth B. Woolfolk, July 25, 1821.
25. On Dec. 29, 1826, Sowell Woolfolk sold land he had purchased earlier that year (Deed Book D, p. 363) to James G. Parks of North Carolina (D, p. 356). By early 1830, Parks was mortgaging the same and most everything he had, specifically requesting that he and his family be supported for a year, dated April 27, 1830 (D, 388-389, 392ff). All of these deeds are in Houston County Georgia, Deed Book D (1829-1831). John Fletcher was appointed administrator Sept. 6, 1830, see p. 105. While it is not clear how long Elizabeth survived her husband, their daughter, Mary Henrietta Parks, was living in Habersham County, Georgia with Sarah and her third husband in 1836, see below.
26. 1830 Census, Muscogee County, Georgia, p. 286. The only child in the household of P. H. Alston is a male, age 5 to 10 years. They also had three slaves. Since her sister was still alive in 1830, this child must be Sarah's. Since the Alstons had only been married two years, the child was hers from her first marriage.
27. See footnote 25, and 1830 Census, Houston County, Georgia, p. 278. The head of the household was Elizabeth Parks and included a male child under 5, a female child under 5, and one aged five to ten, two males 20-30 years old, and a male, 30-40. Elizabeth is presumably the woman aged 30-40. It would appear that her husband could have still be alive, but incapacitated, and thus no longer head of the house. His previously mentioned mortgage asking for a year's support from his creditors hints toward a problem. It is unclear who the other males are, but due to his incapacity, and the children's youth, they could be hired farm workers.

MUSCOGIANA, VOL. 1, NO. 2

28. Sowell Woolfolk is written up extensively in the early histories of Columbus, see Martin, Telfair, and Worsley. He was a Brigadier General in the militia (1828), elected to the state House of Representatives from Muscogee in 1827, to the Senate in 1828, 1829, and 1831, and was a commissioner for the Chattahoochee River navigation, among other things. The last year the Alstons were in Columbus (1831) was a controversial one for Woolfolk, as he was embroiled in political controversies which eventually led to his death in early 1832.

29. The only deed in Habersham County, Georgia by PHA is dated December 28, 1831, wherein he sold the 490 acre lot he won in the 1830 Land Lottery to his brother, James Alston, of Abbeville District, S. C. (Deed Book LL (1831-32), p. 137. This was recorded May 23, 1832. In this deed, PHA said he was a resident of Habersham County. PHA is listed as an attorney in several lawsuits c. 1831 in the Habersham County Records of the Inferior Court (1821-1840), no index and scant pagination. No cases were found involving Alston as a plaintiff or defendant.

30. Habersham County, Georgia. Minutes of the Inferior Court (or Court of Ordinary) 4-A (1824-1848), p. 95. July Term, 1832. She filed a "cour_t" to the probate. Page 96 begins the next session of the court for September and no further mention of this action could be found. The court had barely met during 1832, for pages 91-93 cover the session from November 1831 and January 1832, page 94 is the only page devoted to May 1832, "no business, adjourned the same day", and on the same page begins the July session. Since PHA registered for the 1832 Land Lottery between Feb. and June, and died leaving Sarah enough time to register herself, the date of his death must fit into this narrow time frame.

31. Personal search by the author of both counties' probate records.

32. The records of the 1832 Land and Gold Lottery are in the Surveyor General Office of GDAH. Various indexes have also been printed. The registration period was set by the Governor's Proclamation of Feb. 20, 1832, Proclamation Book H (1823-1854), p. 80, as a four month period from the time of the proclamation. It could be that PHA was in Elbert with intentions of staying there, and thus registered there, and that upon his death, Sarah returned to Habersham, again indicating that she must have had some family members there to return there to live, especially if she did so in her widowhood.

33. Her obituary, cited above, and Habersham County, Georgia Marriage Book. Dyer's dates come from the Dyer Family History by Watson B. Dyer, page 183. He owned land in the town of Clarkesville.

34. Her obituary.

35. Ibid.

36. The published book of Habersham County cemeteries does not list her or Col. Alston.

PHILIP HENRY ALSTON

37. Habersham County, Georgia, Index and Minutes of the Inferior Court (1819-1864) (as published?), p. 147. On page 174 he is to sell one third of Lot 126, 25 District, 2 Section, Murray County. This would indicate that since this lot was won by the orphans of James G. Parks, that there must have been three of them, and that would be consistent with the three children shown in the 1830 Census of Houston County in the household of Elizabeth (Woolfolk) Parks. For the other two, Camilla C. and James S. Parks, see Murray County, Georgia, Deed Book F, pp. 206-207, and 150; and Deed Book E, p. 328.
38. Habersham County, Georgia. Marriage Book B (1841-1874), p. 3, by H. Haverstock, Minister of the Gospel. Wyly's ancestry is given in Edmund J. Cleveland and Horace G. 42. Hezekiah Dyer sold Parks land in 1845 (Dyer Family History, p. 184) and Parks married there, Marriages B (1841-1874), p. 31. He appeared in the 1850, 1860, and 1870 Censuses (as published) of Gwinnett County, Georgia. Her obituary appeared in the Southern Christian Advocate, June 27, 1861. Descendants have not been traced, but are indeed probable.
43. Woolfolk Family Plot, Linwood Cemetery, Columbus, Georgia and the various histories of Columbus, Georgia, mainly those by Telfair and Worsley for information on Woolfolk. His former plantation site, later the Bussey Place, became the Fort Benning Commander's house. There are many local Woolfolk descendants who still bear the surname.
44. See Alston History; 1860 Census of Muscogee County, Georgia; Helen S. Foley, comp. Marriage and Death Notices from Alabama Newspapers and Family Records, 1819-1890 (Easley, S. C.: SHP, 1981), p. 86 for obituary of Philip Henry Alston in 1882 and Columbus Enquirer-Sun, March 19, 1882, p. 2, col. 1 for the full obituary. The Bible record for another branch is found in Helen S. Foley, comp. Bible Records, Vol. I, Barbour County, Alabama (the author, 1976), pp. 11-12. Descendants of this branch include the Atlanta attorneys PHA, Sr. and Jr. Information on them is also found in Atlanta and Environs (1954), III, p. 538-539; and Lucian L. Knight. A Standard History of Georgia and Georgians (1917), VI, pp. 2965-2966.
45. There are many stones yet unturned. These include the city of Columbus records, unmicrofilmed, now in the Columbus Government Center (Courthouse), which include city tax records. The grants for early Columbus town lots, sold by the commissioners in 1828-1829, contain numerous details about early owners, which could have included PHA. These are in the Surveyor General Office, GDAH. There is also the possibility of other letters from PHA to the governors of Georgia or mention of his activities in other persons' letters, or letters in special collections/manuscript collections at various colleges and universities. No contact has been made with anyone descended from the Alston family and no doubt someone in that group has some family material.
